"Prior to Ruskin, I worked in a factory where I became active in the GMB and became Convenor and later Branch Secretary. At Ruskin, I studied Labour Studies which included a Labour law module and I wrote my thesis "Getting away with murder?" about the deregulation of health & safety legislation. Ruskin gave me the confidence and qualifications to study for a law degree. I am now a partner at Pattinson & Brewer Solicitors, a trade union law firm where I specialise in personal injury and occupational disease claims on behalf of union members".

Deborah Smith
Former CerTHE Law student

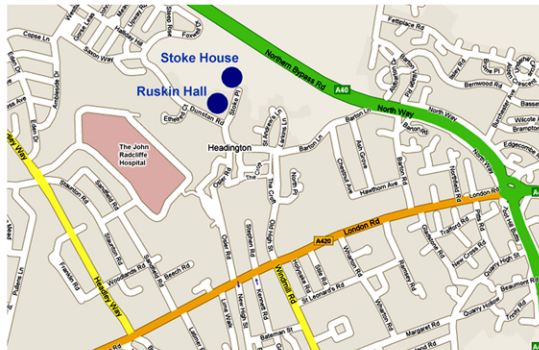

Women, BME, LGBT and others from diversity groups are especially encouraged to apply.
